

NetworkNOW

Metro Transit's vision for the transit system of today and beyond

What should Metro Transit's network look like now?

Network Now is a plan to design transit service that best meets the needs of our region and our residents through 2027. With ridership rebounding from a significant decline in 2020, backed by a new regional sales tax and workforce expansion, this marks a pivotal time in our agency's history.

As part of the Network Now planning process, we:

- Analyzed network performance and changes in travel behavior since 2019
- Engaged more than 6,000 people in a regional conversation on values
- Reviewed policy guidance provided by the Metropolitan Council on the types of services to deliver

The proposed plan will:

- Expand Metro Transit service by more than 35%
- Increase frequency; expand coverage and microtransit
- Redesign express routes and provide more all-day services

We have a draft plan and want to hear from you!
