

TERMS OF INTERNET SERVICE USE

By using the web service offered by Metro Transit, I (either as an individual or an entity) agree to abide by the following Terms of Internet Service Use. Metro Transit and its service providers are not responsible to insure privacy, virus protection or other security. Metro Transit's service providers use content-filtering software that attempts to restrict access to offensive sites; however, no such software is totally effective. Wi-Fi service may not be secure, and could be accessed by others. Power interruptions and internet service interruptions may occur. Metro Transit does not guarantee continuing availability of internet service or access.

I understand and agree that Metro Transit and its service providers are not responsible for any of the following: any information passing through the internet or the web service; privacy or security of information; hardware or software support; lost data; power interruptions; failed or interrupted internet transmissions, transactions, or electronic communications. I acknowledge and agree that Metro Transit and its service providers are not responsible for any damages, whether direct, special, incidental or consequential, resulting from my own use or any other patron's use of the internet and the web service. I agree to be respectful of the rights and feelings of Metro Transit's other patrons in my use of the internet.

I hereby agree: (a) to abide by these Terms of Internet Service Use, (b) not to violate any applicable laws, rules, regulations or policies related to such use, (c) to indemnify and hold Metro Transit, its agents, employees, and service providers harmless from any damage or harm of any kind resulting from use of the web service.

I have carefully read the above terms and conditions. My use of wireless internet service signifies my acceptance of the terms.
